

We all know that HDCP is not goign to be good , not to forget all the people that purchased TVS b/c we all assumed HDTV was going to be a requirment before a certain date that has changed MULTIPLE times. HDCP has already been beaten, it will only cause many people to be w/o HDTV and possible hardware firmware upgrades for electronics we already own which to me seems like an invasion.

Please vote the way of the consumer and do not use HDCP - this will only cause more problems than good and render millions of dollars worth of equipment useless, I do not want to see this and assume the FCC is on the side of the consumer.

Thanks again for the time to read this and please understand what this will do to the public.
